LYCEUM COURSE.

Last year through the efforts of the Civic League Hayti had a Lyceum Course which was so well liked that the League contracted for another course of five numbers for this year.

This year is the fiftieth anniversary of White and Myers Lyceum Bureau and by way of celebration they are sending us better numbers than we would otherwise receive.

A lyceum course is educational as well as entertaining, especially is it educational for High School students. With this fact in mind, and in order that all may attend, the Civic League will admit all High School students at the same price as children.

On October the thirteenth there comes to us the Kellam Duo, composed of Mr. T. J. Kellam and Miss Lela Lowrey. Mr. Kellam, baritone and reader, has been before the public for a number of years. He is a musician of ability, plays the violin, mandolin and piano, and has an excellent baritone voice. He is especially strong in character sketch work and as an entertainer is unsurpassed.

Miss Lowrey has a most charming personality, an unusual voice of power and quality, a real coloratura. She possesses wonderful musician-ship, is an excellent pianist and plays the piano and accordion.

On November the ninth Dr. Frank Church, a very versatile lecturer, will entertain us. Those who miss hearing Dr. Church will lose perhaps the most vital part of the lyceum course.

The Pettyjohn Concert Party, a company of finished artists, in a program of instrumental ensemble, will be here December fifth. Miss Frances Pettyjohn, a pianist and reader, is well known to lyceum audiences through her association with the Gypsy Serenaders. Miss Frances Quackenbush, the cellist, plays her beautiful cello because she loves it, and her audience invariably enjoys her pleasure in her gift. Miss Mary Raleigh, the violinist, plays upon a very valuable old violin and though her repertoire embraces all the standard concert numbers, she prefers to play the "tunes that reach the heart."

The first number of the new year comes on January the sixth—Nene Bevely. Some entertainers are born great—Nene Bevely belongs to that class; like Topsy, she "just grewed." To be an entertainer, Miss Bevely is among the few people who can successfully and pleasantly entertain an audience for an entire evening.

February the eighth is the last number for this year. We were booked for a play, "Cappy Ricks," but since that play was among our chautauqua numbers the lyceum bureau was kind enough to give us another play, equal in quality to "Cappy Ricks," and with a New York cast.

Of course, you'll not miss the play and equally of course, since "everybody's going" to the other numbers, you'll go, too!

—See those beautiful bracelet watches, in various shapes, both gold filled and solid gold, from $12.00 up, at Turnbaugh's Jewelry Store, Caruthersville.

Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Popham of Memphis, Tenn., arrived here last evening and will remain for some time among relatives and friends.

—Stoves and Ranges at the right price.

LEE SPENCER'S NEW STORE

After several years engaged in other pursuits Lee Spencer has returned to the fascination of his first love—the mercantile business—and this week opens his new store in the new Leffer building and invites his old and new friends, and all who will, to call. Lee has entered business this time on more definite and determined lines than ever in the past, and will not be satisfied with anything less than success, and his long reputation for fairness will assuredly prove to him a valuable asset.

As he tells our readers in his ad published in today's paper everything about the store is new—from floor to ceiling, and every piece of goods is fresh from the manufacturer and wholesaler. Lee began early in the summer when there was plenty of time, to select a choice line at competitive prices, knowing full well that in starting in business anew he would have sharp competition to meet, and he feels that the bargains he derived will allow him to make prices that will get the trade. With this aim in view, he invites the purchasing public to call and inspect his stock, and if such investigation does not convince that his is the right place—it will not be because the goods and prices are not right.

—Knit caps and sweaters of all kinds, at Buckleys'.

Last week we had a good local story about F. M. Perkins going to Memphis, purchasing a smokestack for the Roberts gin, which he is manager of this season, and bringing same back by truck, but Charles Trainor got credit for being "skipper" of the truck, when the fact was it was Eurtis Powell. It was a bad accident, this error of ours, but fortunately caused the loss of no life. Mr. Powell has the largest and most expensive truck in town, and possibly the only one that could have transported such a massive cylinder of steel, and we are very sorry to have gotten our wires crossed in making the former statement.

—Canned Tripe, chili con carne and cooked brains, at Buckleys'.

—Genuine oak lawn swings, well bolted and re-inforced; the kind that will stand hard use. We put them up for you. Leffer Hardware Co.,

Mrs. William York of Steele, returning from Caruthersville, spent about an hour at the depot in Hayti Tuesday afternoon, on account of train 801 being late. She had been to the county seat in the interest of the Steele Enterprise, of which Mr. York is the publisher.

—If you have eyesight troubles, consult T. Ben Turnbaugh, Opt. D., registered Optometrist, Caruthersville.

Dunklin County News: W. T. Shepard of Hayti, one of the big farmers of that community, was in Kennett Saturday closing up a deal with Dr. W. B. Finney for the rent of the latter's farm near Hayti for the coming year.

—Most everything in good watches, jewelry, silverware, cut glass, etc., at Turnbaugh's Jewelry Store, Caruthersville.

W. E. Brown of Wardell passed through Hayti Tuesday morning on his way to Caruthersville.

Independent hams, special cure, at Buckleys'.

THE vast majority of those who place long distance calls are perhaps unfamiliar with the fact that they can save money through judicious use of "station-to-station" calls. Here is how they are placed. Jim Smith, traveling salesman, calls his home. He says to "long distance": "I want to talk to Rogers Park 4321 at Chicago, Illinois."

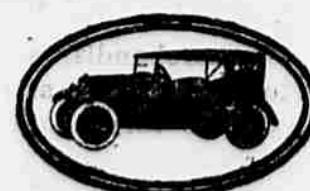

If he had said, "I want to talk to Mrs. Smith at Rogers Park 4321, Chicago", he would be placing a "person-to-person" call, which costs more.

Lower rates can be offered on the "station-to-station" calls because it is easier, quicker and cheaper to connect telephones than to call persons. If the situation permits, make your next long distance call a "station-to-station" call.

Such a call at midnight, from Kansas City to Hayti, costs but fifty-five cents.
